Midleton Distillery

The new Midleton Distillery is next to the Old Midleton Distillery, home of the visitor's centre called The Jameson Experience. Midleton is one of the most modern distilleries in the world and has its production areas linked via fibre-optic networks. The Midleton factory, with a production capacity of 64 million litres per annum, is the largest in Ireland. The distillery boasts three 75,000 litre pot stills, and three column stills, which are used in combinations of three to produce different types of whiskey.

Tullamore Distillery

The Tullamore Distillery is an Irish Whiskey Distillery built by William Grant & Sons in Tullamore, Co. Offaly, Ireland in 2014. It is the first new distillery to have been constructed on a greenfield site in Ireland on over 100 years and the first to operate in Tullamore since 1954. In 1829, The Old Tullamore Distillery was established in Tullamore. In the late 1800s, the General Manager and later owner of the distillery, Daniel E. Williams, launched a whiskey named Tullamore Dew, whose name was taken from his initials, D.E.W. Although the whiskey gained significant success, the distillery later closed in 1954 having suffered financial difficulties. However, the brand was kept alive.

Bushmills Distillery

The Old Bushmills Distillery is a distillery in Bushmills, County Antrim, Northern Ireland. Bushmills is the only distillery in Ireland to make triple-distilled single malt whiskey. After Midleton Distillery, Bushmills is the second biggest Irish distillery. Irish Whiskey production has left the traditional path of using peat long ago. Thus, the typical Irish style today is unpeated, very smooth, light and fruity. Bushmills whiskey is a perfect example of this style because triple pot still distillation makes this very clear and light.

Bushmills 10 Year Old Malt	€6.50
Bushmills 16 Year Old Malt	€13.00
Bushmills 21 Year Old Malt	€17.95
